Brother Charles, superintendent, did not wake them. He said he would wait until mass this morning.

But the mighty slugger's death did not go unmarked. The brothers of the Xaverian order, teachers at the school, gathered in the chapel last night to offer prayers for George Herman Ruth.

CLEVELAND Aug. 17—Clevelander Stanley Siemen, 29, wants $100,000 from his parents-in-law for allegedly alienating the affections of his wife, Irene, 24.

It seems his wife threw herself too fully into her work.

Siemen charged in a suit filed in Cuyahoga county common pleas court that his wife made up to customers as part of her job in the beer parlor of his in-laws, Walter and Mary Zimak.

He claimed his wife retorted, "none of your business," when he complained about hugging, kissing and dancing with patrons.

British Voice Pessimism On Moscow Talk

LONDON, Aug. 17 — Pessimism increased in London diplomatic circles today concerning the outcome of four-power talks on Berlin and Bermany.

The series of interviews of the Western envoys with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov were likened to an endurance contest. This comparison was advanced following the sixth talk last night of Molotov with diplomats of the United States, Britain and France.

Opinion is growing that no arguments remain to be advanced by either side in the dispute over Berlin and the problem of all of Germany.

Britain was believed meanwhile to be given further consideration to slowing down the present rate of demobilization of her armed forces in view of the international situation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—Some 24,000 workers struck today against the International Harvester Company amid charges and counter-charges as to the reason for the breakdown of contract negotiations.

A spokesman for the CIO-United Auto Workers said the company had rejected a union proposal to postpone the walkout if the firm would continue negotiations. The halting of the strike hinged on Harvester's agreement that a final settlement would come out of the resumed talks.

A Harvester spokesman hotly denied the union ever had mentioned such a proposition. He explained that the UAW refused to bargain for all six Harvester plants involved in the talks for a new contract. He said they wanted to negotiate only for three of them.

One union negotiator asserted vehemently the proposal to call off the strike definitely was made.

Pact With U.S. Aim Of Union

Military Front Protective Goal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Envoys of Europe's "Western Union" were instructed today to seek an immediate all-out military alliance with the United States and Canada.

They are urging a pact whereunder "an attack on one constitutes an attack on all."

Such an agreement would forge North America into a military entity with the Western Union nations —Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg against any aggressor.

Decision to gird at once against attack at any time was reached in London, where military and diplomatic representatives of the five Brussels pact signatories have been in continuous consultation for many weeks.

WASHINGTON ambassadors as a result have been instructed to press for U S. adherence.

Some weeks ago, the London conferees presented to the state and army departments a blue print of their joint capabilities and military needs in event of attack. When the Western Union ambassadors submitted this report, top Canadian officials also were present.

It appeared that the extremely grave crisis over the Berlin blockade and the political-economic future of Germany was prompting the pressure for an overall Western alliance.

All Files Of Allies Disappear

Slated To Go To Western Powers

BERLIN, Aug. 17 — Russians broke into the offices of Allied liaison officials of the Central Berlin food office today and confiscated all files.

The central office is in the Soviet sector of the city. The files had been scheduled for removal to a new food office for Western sectors of Berlin.

The British-licensed newspaper Telegraft had more to say meanwhile about reported Russian troop reinforcements in their occupation zone.

German travelers were quoted as saying Soviet forces are massing anti-tank guns as well as tank units with arms and stores near Salswedel, some 100 miles west of Berlin.

The area was reported barred to all civilian traffic. It was said that in recent nights heavy tank units had shifted to points along the British-Soviet zonal boundary.

THE DPD agency at the same time reported that Soviet soldiers and officers throughout the Russian zone are desperately seeking civilian clothing and paying any price asked for the garments.

The newspaper Tagesspiegel reported from Leipzig that the Communist-led German social unity party had threatened to confiscate the radios of persons listening to Western zone broadcasts.

The rift between the Social Unity Group (SED) and Russian zone Christian Democrats was said to be widening.

The Russian licensed Neue Zeit, Christian Democratic Party organ, assailed the SED turn-about on the Berlin elections. Whereas a week ago the SED consented to elections this Autumn, the SED now is opposing them.

REFERRING to a statement by Hermann Litke, SED Berlin chieftain, that Berlin food must be guaranteed and unity restored before elections can be held, the Neue Zeit said:

Meat Strike Sure To Fail, Dealers Say

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17 — The current housewives' strike against high meat prices is "doomed to failure."

That was the conclusion reached last night at a meeting of 85 members of the Greater Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers Association.

The meat dealers predicted that meat prices might go still higher before the end of September. According to the dealers, no real relief is likely until Dec. 1 and it may not come until Spring.

J. J. Collins, association secretary, said some dealers reported sales off last week, but declared they did not believe the attempted housewives boycott was responsible.

The dealers issued a statement, however, in which they pointed out that they "are as apprehensive as the consumer is and will be as elated when the price of meat can be reduced to a considerably lower level."

The central office is in the Soviet sector of the city. The files had been scheduled for removal to a new food office for Western sectors of Berlin.

The British-licensed newspaper Telegraft had more to say meanwhile about reported Russian troop reinforcements in their occupation zone.

German travelers were quoted as saying Soviet forces are massing anti-tank guns as well as tank units with arms and stores near Salswedel, some 100 miles west of Berlin.

The area was reported barred to all civilian traffic. It was said that in recent nights heavy tank units had shifted to points along the British-Soviet zonal boundary.

THE DPD agency at the same time reported that Soviet soldiers and officers throughout the Russian zone are desperately seeking civilian clothing and paying any price asked for the garments.

The newspaper Tagesspiegel reported from Leipzig that the Communist-led German social unity party had threatened to confiscate the radios of persons listening to Western zone broadcasts.

The rift between the Social Unity Group (SED) and Russian zone Christian Democrats was said to be widening.

The Russian licensed Neue Zeit, Christian Democratic Party organ, assailed the SED turn-about on the Berlin elections. Whereas a week ago the SED consented to elections this Autumn, the SED now is opposing them.

REFERRING to a statement by Hermann Litke, SED Berlin chieftain, that Berlin food must be guaranteed and unity restored before elections can be held, the Neue Zeit said:

Meat Strike Sure To Fail, Dealers Say

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17 — The current housewives' strike against high meat prices is "doomed to failure."

That was the conclusion reached last night at a meeting of 85 members of the Greater Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers Association.

The meat dealers predicted that meat prices might go still higher before the end of September. According to the dealers, no real relief is likely until Dec. 1 and it may not come until Spring.

J. J. Collins, association secretary, said some dealers reported sales off last week, but declared they did not believe the attempted housewives boycott was responsible.

The dealers issued a statement, however, in which they pointed out that they "are as apprehensive as the consumer is and will be as elated when the price of meat can be reduced to a considerably lower level."

Herbert Hits Federal Guard

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17—The proposal to federalize the national guard was attacked as "impractical" by Gov. Herbert today.

The governor declared that federalization was unnecessary because the national guard has shown in the past that it can be federalized on short notice when a national need for troops is shown.

able or unwilling to believe that this great figure had actually passed from the contemporary scene.

Ruth's body was removed to the Universal funeral chapel and members of his immediate family announced that a requiem mass would be celebrated at 11 o'clock Thursday at St. Patrick's cathedral.

Ruth came to his greatest eminence in 1927 by hitting an all-time record 60 home runs that has withstood all challenges to this day.

ONLY 32 then, he was still quite a figure of a man—a mite paunchy perhaps, but impelling, compelling and unforgettable. The torso of a moose set precariously and wondrously upon legs that tapered sharply downward from Chippendale thighs into shins grotesquely like stilts.

But tremendous verve, leverage, vitality and power reposed within that massive shoulder-spread. And between eye and sinew was the flawless co-ordination of a striking copperhead; so that few ever hit a baseball as far—and none as often.

There was pathetically little resemblance between that roaring, swashbuckling character and the feeble, wasted figure that lay spent and drained through yesterday's late afternoon. Only the day before Ruth had been allowed to sit up for a short time in the hope that his great fighting spirit, always so near the surface, would respond.

But it wasn't to be. To a cancerous condition of the throat came the complication of a pulmonary infection during the mid-afternoon hours and by five o'clock the end was very near.

BY THAT time, a glaze had come on Ruth's eyes. The thin, pitiful voice with which he'd whispered his words was no more. His flabby cheek was sunken and chalk white beneath its waxy pallor. He lay thus flaccid, spent, inert for several hours.

Presently he sighed ever so slightly, one hand plucked feebly at the coverlet for a moment—and was still.

Of the Babe's lifetime, 22-year total of 714 homers, undoubtedly the most dramatized and least historically correct was that hit at Wrigley field, Chicago, in the third game of the 1932 world series.

That's the one where, in response to heckling from the Cubs, he was pictured as first pointing dramatically to the bleachers in dead centerfield and then hitting the next pitch precisely there.

The incident is remembered; while forgotten forthwith was the fact that the late Lou Gehrig hit a homer on the next ball pitched far up in the right-centerfield bleachers—to well nigh complete silence. Many in the park probably never knew it even happened.

RUTH WAS one of the really great left hand pitchers in his day, or any—a fact made clear by the 29 consecutive scoreless innings he pitched in the '16 and '18 inter-league championships. It still stands as a world series record.

He was said never to have made a mistake on the field—yet seldom knew the identity of those who opposed him.

Tremendous instinct alone made him great above all others; that, and an emotional flair which produced gestures of great impact and ostentation.

He snarled in rage at a Yankee player who objected to Ruth "collecting" his $10 donation to St. Mary's industrial school band fund—and later wistfully wept because he was leaving California.

These, and a thousand little known incidents tell of the real Ruth—not the slightly incredible figure of the headlines who brought major league salaries into the semi-high brackets with his top wage of $80,000, plus two seasons at $75,000 and three at $70,000.

250 Children In Kiwanis Park Program

Nearly 250 different Circleville youngsters were registered at the Second annual Kiwanis-sponsored Ted Lewis Park Summer playground program.

A report telling Circleville Kiwanians of the various activities staged this year at the park was submitted Monday night by park supervisor Jim Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick stated at the meeting that the membership had increased by only 12 over last year's figure, but that the Circleville youngsters had attended the daily sessions much more frequently this year than during last year's "pioneer" program.

He related that the total overall attendance for the playground program this year exceeded 4,700, while last year's attendance barely reached the 4,000 mark.

KIRKPATRICK submitted a challenge to the Kiwanians along with his report, asking the club members to consider possibilities of establishing a full-time recreational program for the Circleville youngsters.

He told the Kiwanians they could start a full-time program in either of two ways. . they might bring in a full-time recreational director, or they might invite a branch of the YMCA into the territory.

He suggested, also, that if the full-time program proved too large a task for the group, next year's city park program would need two full-time supervisors for the two month period.

KIRKPATRICK reiterated this Summer's schedule, telling the sponsoring group of the softball games, handicraft clubs, and other activities their money had supported.

The supervisor concluded his report by telling the club he would be unable to return to the playground next season, since he planned more work on his Master's degree for next Summer.

Monroe Asks Increase In School Levy

Monroe Township rural school district Tuesday became the fourth board of education to file its petition with the Pickaway County board of election for an increased tax levy to be placed on the November ballot.

According to the proposal, the levy would cover a five-year period including the present year to maintain increasing operating expenses.

The new tax would not exceed two mills on each one-dollar of valuation. This would mean 20 cents for each $100 of property valuation, the petition declared.

Other school districts who have petitioned for an increase to the 10 mill limitation on school taxes are Wayne Township, New Holland and Ashville.

Wayne Township is asking for a three-mill levy, New Holland for a five-mill levy and Ashville for a two-mill added assessment.

Conrad Denies Charge Of Theft

Earl Conrad of Circleville Township, Monday evening pleaded innocent and was bound to Pickaway County grand jury under $500 bond when haled before Magistrate Oscar Root on a petit larceny count.

County authorities arrested Conrad last week on an affidavit filed by Clyde Cook of Circleville who reported the theft from one of his truck of an air check valve valued at $15.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said a similar valve was found on a truck owned by Conrad and was believed to be the stolen part. Conrad was remanded to the county jail in default of bond payment.

House Red Hunters Recess Hearings

ranged the United Nations meeting at San Francico, said he didn't know Chambers.

Mystery shrouded the failure of Chambers to appear as scheduled at yesterday's executive session to confront Hiss across a table in the privacy of the committee room. It was learned, however, that Chambers was invited, was prepared to come, and was requested at the last minute by the committee to stay away.

Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., committee chairman, announced after the executive session that the two men would confront each other, probably behind closed doors, on Aug. 25. There was considerable conjecture on Capitol Hill, however, that the meeting would never take place.

Thomas also announced that the public hearings would resume Sept. 7, but one member commented: "I don't see how we can run them for long, because we don't have very much to go on."

Members apparently were impressed by Hiss' testimony at the gruelling three-hour private session during which he was questioned about many intimate and personal family matters. Hiss declined to make a statement after the hearing. Thomas told newsmen the committee's investigators would spend the recess in running down clues which might provide corroborative evidence.

IT WAS evident that either Hiss or Chambers was lying. Reps. Mundt (R) S. D., and Hebert (D) La., were among those who were agreed that perjury had been committed, but as Mundt stated: "I don't know which one is lying."

What worried committee members was that Chambers, now a senior editor for Time magazine, tended in his testimony to corroborate the story told by Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley, the self-confessed Communist spy who "broke" the story. Miss Bentley charged that a Communist spy ring existed in the government during the war and named many prominent officials in the New Deal administration as participants.

If Chambers' story is discredited, then Miss Bentley's sensational testimony will be greatly weakened.

When residents of Circleville and vicinity receive their electric bill in September from the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., the new 4.4 percent rate increase will be included.

The rate hike went into effect at midnight here and in 62 other communities except Columbus where city council has employed legal means to halt the increase.

Columbus City Attorney Richard C. Gordon asked for a temporary injunction against the electric firm and Common Pleas Judge Joseph M. Clifford granted the request.

Last night, Richard C. Redman, accountant hired by Columbus to audit the company's books, said he believed the increase whould amount to only 3.6 percent.

He said there were three inconsistencies in the company's books and that the salaries of the two administrative officers had been included in the cost of production.

ranged the United Nations meeting at San Francico, said he didn't know Chambers.

Mystery shrouded the failure of Chambers to appear as scheduled at yesterday's executive session to confront Hiss across a table in the privacy of the committee room. It was learned, however, that Chambers was invited, was prepared to come, and was requested at the last minute by the committee to stay away.

Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., committee chairman, announced after the executive session that the two men would confront each other, probably behind closed doors, on Aug. 25. There was considerable conjecture on Capitol Hill, however, that the meeting would never take place.

Thomas also announced that the public hearings would resume Sept. 7, but one member commented: "I don't see how we can run them for long, because we don't have very much to go on."

Members apparently were impressed by Hiss' testimony at the gruelling three-hour private session during which he was questioned about many intimate and personal family matters. Hiss declined to make a statement after the hearing. Thomas told newsmen the committee's investigators would spend the recess in running down clues which might provide corroborative evidence.

IT WAS evident that either Hiss or Chambers was lying. Reps. Mundt (R) S. D., and Hebert (D) La., were among those who were agreed that perjury had been committed, but as Mundt stated: "I don't know which one is lying."

What worried committee members was that Chambers, now a senior editor for Time magazine, tended in his testimony to corroborate the story told by Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley, the self-confessed Communist spy who "broke" the story. Miss Bentley charged that a Communist spy ring existed in the government during the war and named many prominent officials in the New Deal administration as participants.

If Chambers' story is discredited, then Miss Bentley's sensational testimony will be greatly weakened.

W. R. Bayes of Haysville Tuesday laid claim to the largest cabbage grown this year in Pickaway County when he rolled the outsized monster from his garden.

The latest proof that Pickaway County has really "growin' ground" was evidenced by the 15-pound vegetable that measured three-feet and one-inch in circumference.

Jay L. Clark Transferred To Illinois Plant

transfer was made at a Foreman's dinner Monday night in the Court-Main restaurant by David Grant, of St. Louis, production manager for all Ralston Purina plants east of the Mississippi River.

Grant came to Circleville especially to make the announcement. He appeared again Tuesday morning to make an official statement before a mass meeting of all Ralston Purina employes.

Before coming to Circleville, Clark spent three years with the Ralston firm in Lafayette, after leaving Purdue university. For most of the last year, he has been in charge of setting up a new plant at St. Johnsbury, Vt.

Clark's duties in Bloomington will be to supervise Ralston Purina's largest American soy bean plant. That unit has has a storage capacity of two-million bushel of grain, a 250 ton per day crushing capacity and chow machinery the same as used here.

He was a member of Rotary Club, one of the organizers of the Pickaway County Rifle and Pistol Club and served on the county draft board during World War II. He is married and has one son.

New Electric Rate Increase

When residents of Circleville and vicinity receive their electric bill in September from the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., the new 4.4 percent rate increase will be included.

The rate hike went into effect at midnight here and in 62 other communities except Columbus where city council has employed legal means to halt the increase.

Columbus City Attorney Richard C. Gordon asked for a temporary injunction against the electric firm and Common Pleas Judge Joseph M. Clifford granted the request.

Last night, Richard C. Redman, accountant hired by Columbus to audit the company's books, said he believed the increase whould amount to only 3.6 percent.

He said there were three inconsistencies in the company's books and that the salaries of the two administrative officers had been included in the cost of production.

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning
That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low
If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?
Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Here Are Stories On Truman, Dewey Presidency Race

Slugging Match Is Readied By President

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 — President Truman is going to wage a campaign for reelection that the Republican Party and the country won't soon forget.

Win or lose, Mr. Truman's opponent will know he was in a slugging match.

The President picked his campaign target sometime ago. In fact, one might say the Congress picked it for him. He has made no secret of it. He has talked of little else the past two months.

Target for a Truman victory: The Republican-majority 80th Congress, and the Republican Party record.

His main campaign theme: Failure of Congress to take action to halt rising prices, or to provide low-cost housing.

IN SPOKANE, Wash., the President gave newsmen his estimate of the 80th Congress:

"It is one of the worst Congresses since the first one sat."

From coast-to-coast on his 7,500-mile speaking tour, the President pounded relentlessly at "congressional failures."

He called it a "special privilege" Congress, interested only in "legislating for the rich and soaking the poor."

The people of the nation are going to hear a great deal more of the same during September and October.

They are going to hear a lot about the subject all can understand: High prices.

If Mr. Truman wins in November, it probably will be the result of a nationwide revolt at the polls against high prices.

Like a boxer slashing away at an opponent's cut eyebrow, Truman is going to pound home that issue.

No presidential candidate in a long time has waged the strenuous campaign the President and his advisers are now planning for him.

It will begin right after Labor Day. It won't end until Election Day in November.

Mr. Truman is planning to take his fight to virtually every state in the union. He is going to campaign from the crack of dawn until late at night.

On the recent trip to the west coast, Mr. Truman gave an example of his campaigning technique.

On a day not at all typical, he made eight speeches.

The first was at 6:10 a. m. For the last he was in his pajamas and dressing gown at 12:30 a. m. the following morning.

This was on the home stretch of a 16-day trip in which he made 73 speeches.

Robbers Fail In Store Break

Circleville police Tuesday morning launched an investigation into a reported attempt by prowlers to break into the rear door of the Western Auto Associate store, 124 West Main street.

Police Officer Elmer Merriman said it was apparent the intruders had used a small chisel in a try to break the door lock. The attempted burglary was discovered by John Magill, store manager.

Motorist Held As Drunk Driver

Lester J. Phillips, 40, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was held Tuesday in Circleville city jail accused of driving when under the influence of alcohol, and two companions were booked on intoxication charges.

Beside Phillips, police are holding Donald Brown, 31, of Parkersburg, and Clarence Carpenter, 22, of Wheeling, W. Va.

The three West Virginians were arrested early Tuesday on North Court street by Officers Ralph Leist and Rod List. They will appear for hearing in Mayor's court.

Bridge Bonds To Be Up To Voters

Pickaway County commissioners Monday directed Attorney Kenneth Robbins to draw up a $210,000 resolution for a bond issue to be submitted to the board of election to be placed on the November ballot.

Commissioner John Keller said the money is required to repair and replace 11 road structures damaged in June in Walnut Township during the flash flood caused by a near cloud burst.

The damage estimate was made in a report turned into the commissioners Monday by County Engineer Henry T. McCrady.

New York Chief Native Of Michigan

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 17—Because Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for President, won fame and high position in the east, thousands of persons regard him as a typical New Yorker, with little knowledge of the problems of the rest of the nation.

Dewey was born in a flat over a general store in a midwestern town, Owosso, Mich.

He spent his boyhood in the warm, friendly atmosphere of that community, where his mother, Mrs. Anne Dewey, still lives in a comfortable white frame house.

Owosso was a neighborly place of 8,000 people on March 24, 1902, when Dewey was born. His parents resided at that time in Lansing, Mich., where his father, George Dewey, was employed in the state auditor-general's office.

His grandfather, Alfred Thomas, insisted, however, that his daughter, Anne, come to his home for the great event.

Soon thereafter, young Tom's parents moved to Owosso, where his father took over the Times. He later became postmaster, serving in that office until he died in 1927.

Half English, half Irish, Anne Dewey is probably the most popular person in Owosso. She plays golf, loves a game of bridge and laughs easily and often.

HIS MOTHER would not permit young Tom to become a newsboy, an early ambition, until he was 11. Two years later, even then the organizer, he had a staff of a dozen youngsters working for him.

Too young for Army service in 1918, Tom Dewey worked on a farm. Then was born his great love of farming, demonstrated today by his ownership of a dairy farm in Pawling, N. Y.

At the age of 17, Dewey entered the University of Michigan, where he worked on the college newspaper and sang in the glee club.

There began the mental battle as to whether he should seek a career in music or in law.

Music won temporarily and Dewey was off to Chicago to study under Percy Rector Stephens, noted voice teacher.

Stephens had a secretary, young, charming and pretty, who also had a beautiful voice.

When Frances Eileen Hutt, Texas-born but later a resident of Oklahoma, decided to go to New York to pursue her studies, Dewey went along.

In the metropolis, law won out finally over music and Dewey won the heart of the charming Frances.

Like thousands of young couples before them, Tom and Frances decided that two could live as cheaply at one. So they were wed, with their first home a two-room walkup apartment in New York City. No one will deny they have been happy ever since.

The United States Democartic Party rules provide twice as many delegates to the national conventions as do Republican party rules.

If Mr. Truman wins in November, it probably will be the result of a nationwide revolt at the polls against high prices.

Like a boxer slashing away at an opponent's cut eyebrow, Truman is going to pound home that issue.

No presidential candidate in a long time has waged the strenuous campaign the President and his advisers are now planning for him.

It will begin right after Labor Day. It won't end until Election Day in November.

Mr. Truman is planning to take his fight to virtually every state in the union. He is going to campaign from the crack of dawn until late at night.

On the recent trip to the west coast, Mr. Truman gave an example of his campaigning technique.

On a day not at all typical, he made eight speeches.

The first was at 6:10 a. m. For the last he was in his pajamas and dressing gown at 12:30 a. m. the following morning.

This was on the home stretch of a 16-day trip in which he made 73 speeches.

Robbers Fail In Store Break

Circleville police Tuesday morning launched an investigation into a reported attempt by prowlers to break into the rear door of the Western Auto Associate store, 124 West Main street.

Police Officer Elmer Merriman said it was apparent the intruders had used a small chisel in a try to break the door lock. The attempted burglary was discovered by John Magill, store manager.

Motorist Held As Drunk Driver

Lester J. Phillips, 40, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was held Tuesday in Circleville city jail accused of driving when under the influence of alcohol, and two companions were booked on intoxication charges.

Beside Phillips, police are holding Donald Brown, 31, of Parkersburg, and Clarence Carpenter, 23, of Wheeling, W. Va.

The three West Virginians were arrested early Tuesday on North Court street by Officers Ralph Leist and Rod List. They will appear for hearing in Mayor's court.

Bridge Bonds To Be Up To Voters

Pickaway County commissioners Monday directed Attorney Kenneth Robbins to draw up a $210,000 resolution for a bond issue to be submitted to the board of election to be placed on the November ballot.

Commissioner John Keller said the money is required to repair and replace 11 road structures damaged in June in Walnut Township during the flash flood caused by a near cloud burst.

The damage estimate was made in a report turned into the commissioners Monday by County Engineer Henry T. McCrady.

New York Chief Native Of Michigan

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 17—Because Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for President, won fame and high position in the east, thousands of persons regard him as a typical New Yorker, with little knowledge of the problems of the rest of the nation.

Dewey was born in a flat over a general store in a midwestern town, Owosso, Mich.

He spent his boyhood in the warm, friendly atmosphere of that community, where his mother, Mrs. Anne Dewey, still lives in a comfortable white frame house.

Owosso was a neighborly place of 8,000 people on March 24, 1902, when Dewey was born. His parents resided at that time in Lansing, Mich., where his father, George Dewey, was employed in the state auditor-general's office.

His grandfather, Alfred Thomas, insisted, however, that his daughter, Anne, come to his home for the great event.

Soon thereafter, young Tom's parents moved to Owosso, where his father took over the Times. He later became postmaster, serving in that office until he died in 1927.

Half English, half Irish, Anne Dewey is probably the most popular person in Owosso. She plays golf, loves a game of bridge and laughs easily and often.

HIS MOTHER would not permit young Tom to become a newsboy, an early ambition, until he was 11. Two years later, even then the organizer, he had a staff of a dozen youngsters working for him.

Too young for Army service in 1918, Tom Dewey worked on a farm. Then was born his great love of farming, demonstrated today by his ownership of a dairy farm in Pawling, N. Y.

At the age of 17, Dewey entered the University of Michigan, where he worked on the college newspaper and sang in the glee club.

There began the mental battle as to whether he should seek a career in music or in law.

Music won temporarily and Dewey was off to Chicago to study under Percy Rector Stephens, noted voice teacher.

Stephens had a secretary, young, charming and pretty, who also had a beautiful voice.

When Frances Eileen Hutt, Texas-born but later a resident of Oklahoma, decided to go to New York to pursue her studies, Dewey went along.

In the metropolis, law won out finally over music and Dewey won the heart of the charming Frances.

Like thousands of young couples before them, Tom and Frances decided that two could live as cheaply at one. So they were wed, with their first home a two-room walkup apartment in New York Cfty. No one will deny they have been happy ever since.

The United States Democartic Party rules provide twice as many delegates to the national conventions as do Republican party rules.

WHY PICK ON MEAT?

THE TELEPHONE campaign spreading the housewives' boycott against high priced meat has brought the plaintive question from meat producers and distributors: "Why pick on meat?" The prices of other foods, they say, are proportionately just as high as those of meat.

Probably the reason is that the cost of meat is the most substantial single item in the average family food budget. Recently published figures placed the nation's weekly meat bill at $135,000,000 more than it was a year ago. In terms of the family budget, that is an increase of almost a dollar a week for each member of the family. Still worse, the amount of meat the customers were getting for all this money was about 40,000,000 pounds a week less than a year ago.

With even higher prices predicted, families with tightly squeezed budgets are beginning to think about the possibility that meat might become a curiosity on the order of an eclipse of the sun, something to talk about but seldom seen. It is understandable that the people in the meat industry are unhappy, along with the customers. But they should not find it too amazing that the militant Texas housewives picked on meat.

WHY THEY FLY

BIRD migration, one of nature's great mysteries, may have its explanation in events of 100 million years ago.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science heard a Northwestern University professor, Dr. Albert Wolfson, expound his thesis that birds evolved at a time when the world's land areas were divided into two masses, Laurasia and Gondwana. He suggests that birds made short flights between these lands for breeding and feeding. The lands drifted apart, only a few inches a year at first, and then divided until the continents took their widely separated locations. The slow increase in distances was imperceptible to the birds, and the migration instinct had become established, reasons Dr. Wolfson.

NEW VACATION SPOT

AN EXCITING boat trip may be available in a year or two. A New York shipping company announces the establishment of freight service 1,000 miles up the Amazon River, with a prospect of adding passenger ships later. Trial trips have proved that freight service will pay. This country will benefit, as well as the steamship company, by the opportunity to draw on the rich and untouched resources of the Amazon jungle. Rough roads are now available from the river to the interior, so that the products of the inland may be brought to the boats.

Of course there will be people to say, "This is all very well, but when will it be possible to drive there?".

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The United States, Great Britain and France did not interfere with Soviet Russia's exclusive authority to seize Karelia in Finland or Bessarabia in Rumania or to establish an Iron Curtain between the Western World and all the Balkan States except Greece. Yet Soviet Russia has demanded a voice in the affairs of Japan, Korea, Manchuria, although Russia was in the Far Eastern War six days and did no fighting. Further, Soviet Russia demands a voice in the settlement of Middle Eastern and African questions although Soviet Russia did no fighting for the liberation of these areas.

The Democrats are embarrassed by the fact that at Teheran, Yalta, Potsdam and the Paris Council of Foreign Ministers, Roosevelt and Truman gave Russia a blank check. It is almost impossible for George Marshall to go back on Roosevelt and Truman and that is why his negotiations with the Russians produce so many difficulties.

The Republicans are equally embarrassed because since the operation of the Bipartisan Foreign Policy, Senator Vandenberg has tended to accept the State Department's view. Furthermore, they cannot discountenance the official attitude of the United States without giving the impression of supporting Soviet Russia, and they can only get such information as the State Department gives them.

So we now have before us the problem of the Italian colonies. They were liberated by British and American troops. The Russians played no part in that campaign. Furthermore, the Russians objected to everything that was being done in Africa because they felt that that would interfere with the Second Front. It will be remembered that Roosevelt had promised Stalin a Second Front in 1942 when Soviet Russia was being defeated, but D-Day did not eventuate until 1944. Roosevelt promised more than he could deliver at the time and the Russians claimed their pound of flesh, although we have given them more than they had any right to expect.

Nevertheless, all the events and all the evidence since 1942, now available, prove conclusively that Churchill was right in his plans for the liberation of Africa and Italy and the underbelly of Europe through the Balkans. Had Roosevelt listened to Churchill, we should not today be faced by so aggressive and demanding a Russia which acts as though the United States and Great Britain were secondary allies.

That is the Russian side of the case and whenever our delegates meet theirs, they are faced by Roosevelt promises and arrangements, and Roosevelt is dead and cannot do anything about it. As long as the Democrats are in the White House and the State Department, they are stuck with the Roosevelt formula, which they cannot repudiate or even successfully revise without the appearance of repudiation. This is as difficult for the Russians as for us, because the Russians have discovered that there is a will here to change but an incapacity to find the direction. This produces diplomatic static which confuses the Russians as it does the Americans.

The aforesaid applies to the problem of the Italian Colonies with which the Four Powers now have to deal. Unless they reach an agreement concerning them by September 21, this question will go to the Assembly of the United Nations where they will use their votes in the Assembly to bargain over Palestine; the South Americans and the Chinese will use this problem as bargaining points between the United States Great

A Painful Injury of the Knee

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOUGH very complicated in structure, the knee is not a versatile joint. It can bend or straighten, but it cannot, like certain other joints, execute a circular movement. Thus, it does not withstand well, sudden forceful movements which involve twisting of the leg.

Certain sports and industries seem to make for the type of strain which results in injury to the knee. College boys who play football and miners who dig coal have one thing in common—both are familiar with the type of knee injury which results from tearing of the cartilages within the joint, because it occurs so often in connection with their work or sport.

Torn Cartilages

The symptoms of torn cartilages in the joint are pain and tenderness in the knee, and locking of the joint in a half-bent position, followed in a few hours by swelling. The joint will suddenly unlock, either by itself or following manipulation, and there is immediate relief from pain and discomfort. However, there are recurrent attacks of the locking and pain which are usually less severe than the first attack. These recurrent attacks are brought on by a slight twist or strain of the knee.

There is a test which can be made to aid in determining whether or not torn cartilages are present. The patient lies down and relaxes. Then the foot is firmly grasped by the physician and the knee is bent as much as possible until the heel approaches the buttock. The foot is then turned outward and the leg bent outward at the knee. With the leg and foot in this position, the knee is slowly straightened. If during this movement there is pain and a click within the joint, it is likely that the cartilages within the joint have been damaged.

Injury to Knee

When an injury to the knee occurs, of course, an X-ray examination should be made. However, the X-ray will not show a tear in the cartilages unless some of the cartilage has broken off and is free in the joint. Such a bit of material in the joint is called a loose body. Such a loose body, coming from some condition other than tearing of the cartilage, may cause symptoms much like those of a torn cartilage. When this bit of material gets caught between the bone surfaces that make up the joint, there may be locking and acute pain.

Strain of the ligaments may also produce symptoms like those of cartilage tears.

Treatment for the tears depends upon the extent of the damage. If the joint is locked when first seen by the physician, manipulation may be carried out to get the cartilage back into proper position. Then a firm bandage or splint may be put on. If the manipulation is not successful, an operation, which consists of removing the cartilage, must be carried out. If the condition recurs several times, operation always is advisable, since some permanent injury to the joint may occur if the disorder is allowed to continue.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. J.: My daughter six years old has a difficult time in pronouncing words. Is there some school where she could be taught?

Answer: There are various schools for instruction in speech. The best thing is to take the child to a physician who specializes in speech training to find the cause of her trouble; then proper treatment may be carried out.

CHAPTER TWENTY

"OH THERE you are, Lynn," Adela's voice was brisk and relieved. "I didn't hear you come in, darling. Have you been in long?"

"Oh yes, ages. I was upstairs."

"I wish you'd tell me when you come in, Lynn. I'm always nervous when you're out alone after dark."

"Really, Mums, don't you think I can look after myself?"

"Well, there have been dreadful things in the papers lately. All these discharged soldiers—they attack girls."

"I expect the girls ask for it."

She smiled — rather a twisted smile.

Yes, girls did ask for danger. . . . Who, after all, really wanted to be safe . . . ?

"Lynn, darling, are you listening?"

Lynn brought her mind back with a jerk.

Her mother had been talking.

"What did you say, Mums?"

"I was talking about your bridesmaids, dear. I suppose they'll be able to produce the coupons all right. It's very lucky for you having all your demob ones. I'm really terribly sorry for girls who get married nowadays on just their ordinary coupons. I mean they just can't have anything new at all. Not outside, I mean. What with the state all one's undies are in nowadays one just has to go for them. Yes, Lynn, you really are lucky."

She was walking round the room—prowling, picking up things, puttinge them down.

"Must you be so terribly restless dear? You make me feel quite jumpy!"

"Sorry, Mums."

"There's nothing the matter, is there?"

"What should be the matter?" asked Lynn sharply.

"Well, don't jump down my throat, darling. Now about bridesmaids. I really think you ought to ask the Macrae girl. Her mother was my closest friend, remember, and I do think she'll be hurt if—"

"I loathe Joan Macrae and always have."

"I know, darling, but does that really matter? Marjorie will, I'm sure, feel hurt—"

"Really, Mums, it's my wedding, isn't it?"

"Yes, I know, Lynn, but—"

"If there is a wedding at all!"

She hadn't meant to say that. The words slipped out without her having planned them. She would have caught them back, but it was too late. Mrs. Marchmont was staring at her daughter in alarm.

"Lynn, darling, what do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing, Mums."

"You and Rowley haven't quarrelled?"

"No, of course not. Don't fuss, Mums, everything's all right."

But Adela was looking at her daughter in real alarm, sensitive to the turmoil behind Lynn's frowning exterior.

"I've always felt you'd be safe married to Rowley," she said piteously.

"Who wants to be safe?" Lynn asked scornfully. She turned sharply. "Was that the telephone?"

"No. Why? Are you expecting a call?"

Lynn shook her head. Humiliating to be waiting for the telephone to ring. He had said he would ring her tonight. He must. "You're mad," she told herself. "Mad."

Why did this man attract her so? The memory of his dark unhappy face rose up before her eyes. She tried to banish it, tried to replace it by Rowley's broad good-looking countenance. His slow smile, his affectionate glance. But did Rowley, she thought, really care about her? Surely if he'd really cared, he'd have understood that day when she came to him and begged for five hundred pounds. He'd have understood instead of being so maddeningly reasonable and matter-of-fact. Marry Rowley, live on the farm, never go away again, never see foreign skies, smell exotic smells—never, again, be free—

Sharply the telephone rang. Lynn took a deep breath, walked across the hall and picked up the receiver.

With the shock of a blow, Aunt Kathie's voice came thinly through the wire.

"Lynn? Is that you? Oh I'm so glad. I'm afraid, you know, I've made rather a muddle—about the meeting at the Institute—"

The thin fluttering voice went on. Lynn listened, interpolated comments, uttered reassurances, received thanks.

"Such a comfort, dear Lynn, you are always so kind and so practical. I really can't imagine how I get things so muddled up."

Lynn couldn't imagine either. Aunt Kathie's capacity for muddling the simplest issues amounted practically to genius.

"But I always do say," finished Aunt Kathie, "that everything goes wrong at once. Our telephone is out of order and I've had to go out to a call box, and now I'm here I hadn't got twopence, only halfpennies—and I had to go and ask—"

It petered out at last. Lynn hung up and went back to the drawing room. Adela Marchmont, alert, asked: "Was that—" and paused.

Lynn said quickly: "Aunt Kathie."

"What did she want?"

"Oh just one of her usual muddles."

Lynn sat down again with a book, glancing up at the clock. Yes—it had been too early. She couldn't expect her call yet. At five minutes past eleven the telephone rang again. She went slowly out to it. This time she wouldn't expect—it was probably Aunt Kathie again—

But no. "Warmsley Vale 34? Can Miss Lynn Marchmont take a personal call from London?"

Her heart missed a beat.

"This is Miss Lynn Marchmont speaking."

"Hold on, please."

She waited—confused noises—then silence. The telephone service was getting worse and worse. She waited. Finally she depressed the receiver angrily. Another woman's voice, indifferent, cold, spoke, was uninterested. "Hang up, please. You'll be called later."

She hung up, went back towards the drawing room, the bell rang again as she had her hand on the door. She hurried back to the telephone.

"Hullo?"

A man's voice said: "Warmsley Vale 34? Personal call from London for Miss Lynn Marchmont."

"Speaking."

"Just a minute, please." Then, faintly, "Speak up, London, you're through . . ."

And then, suddenly, David's voice:

"Lynn, is that you?"

"David!"

"I had to speak to you."

"Yes . . ."

"Look here, Lynn, I think I'd better clear out. . . ."

"What do you mean?"

"Clear out of England altogether. Oh! it's easy enough. I've pretended it wasn't to Rosaleen—simply because I didn't want to leave Warmsley Vale. But what's the good of it all? You and I—it wouldn't work. You're a fine girl, Lynn—and as for me, I'm a bit of a crook, always have been. And don't flatter yourself that I'd go straight for your sake. I might mean to—but it wouldn't work. No, you'd better marry the plodding Rowley. He'll never give you a day's anxiety as long as you live."

She stood there, holding the receiver, saying nothing.

"Lynn, are you there still?"

"Yes, I'm here."

"You didn't say anything."

"What is there to say?"

"Lynn?"

"Well? . . ."

Strange how clearly she could feel over all that distance, his excitement, the urgency of his mood.

He said explosively, "Heck with everything!" and rang off.

Mrs. Marchmont coming out of the drawing room said, "Was that—?"

"A wrong number," said Lynn and went quickly up the stairs.

JOBS UPON A TIME

Born in Budapest, Hungary, Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, was given a tiny violin when he was three, and two years later he was proficient enough to be entered in the Royal Academy of Music. At ten Eugene was studying counterpoint and harmony, and at 17 received his professor's diploma. Offered an American tour, Ormandy arrived in New York to find the tour was a mirage, but he got a job as violinist in the Capitol Theater orchestra, where he got his first experience as conductor. In 1931 Toscanini was to conduct concerts of the Philadelphia orchestra, but became ill and Ormandy was chosen to substitute for him. In 1936 he was appointed coconductor of the Philadelphia orchestra with Leopold Stokowski, whom he succeeded as conductor.

President Worst Beaten Candidate Since Landon? | Truman May Lose Border And Five Southern States

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Despite President Truman's bold gesture in summoning back Congress (now adjourned again) and his fighting address to the Democratic national convention, indications are that he will be the worst-beaten candidate since Alf Landon in 1936.

Political experts agree that the solid south is broken and that the Dixiecrats may carry Mississippi, Alabama, South Carolina and, possibly, Georgia and Florida. There are signs that Mr. Truman also will lose every border state.

Washington

Kentucky may be close because of the presence of Senator Alben Barkley on the Democratic ticket, but even there the odds are against Mr. Truman. Latest information is that the president will lose his home state of Missouri. He is expected to lose Oklahoma.

Mr Truman is being given a chance to carry the state of Washington because of its strong labor vote. He may win Rhode Island, Texas and North Carolina. Virginia is in doubt. So it goes all down the line, in the parade of states.

Top sources concede that many voters are displeased with the 80th Congress but will support the Dewey-Warren ticket for a change in administration, hoping it means a change for the better.

* * * *

● CIO SUPPORT—President Truman, however, may take consolation from certain factors. For instance, signs are multiplying that the CIO, which has been playing hard to get, ultimately will endorse the president.

CIO President Phil Murray has called his chief aides to a meeting in Washington in late August. The decision to back Mr. Truman may be taken then.

Jack Kroll, head of the CIO Political Action Committee, who earlier was bitter against the administration, recently told a CIO union convention: "It may be that the plain people of the United States have found another champion. It may be that President Truman has found himself; at any rate, he has a new look now, and I must say that the new look becomes him."

This "new look" dates from the Democratic convention—Mr. Truman's speech to the conclave and the party platform planks calling for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law and support of civil rights legislation.

It is noted that some labor leaders believe by delaying endorsement of Mr. Truman they are throwing votes to Henry Wallace's third party, which the CIO strongly opposes.

* * * *

● TIMELY MISS BENTLEY—Some Republicans in Congress are offering secret thanks to Elizabeth Bentley, confessed ex-Communist spy ring leader—and not because of her exposures of alleged espionage agents in government, either.

The GOP can't help being grateful that Miss Bentley's startling revelations and allegations have diverted public thinking from the anti-inflation row they were asked to act on in President Truman's special session call.

This isn't to say that Republicans generally are not confident of election victory in November. They are. However, certain GOP congressmen have feared their own political futures were jeopardized by the president's emphasis on inflation and the GOP leadership's unwillingness to do anything about it.

Red Probe Helps GOP Candidates

These Republicans, from congressional districts that swing from one political faith to another on a narrow margin of votes, have openly expressed fears that Mr. Truman's strong anti-inflation stand might tip the scales against them in November.

However, they feel a bit better about it now. Miss Bentley has the voting public thinking in terms of the Communist menace rather than anti-inflation.

They are beginning to hope that the Democratic anti-inflation issue might prove to be another Truman miscalculation.

WHY PICK ON MEAT?

THE TELEPHONE campaign spreading the housewives' boycott against high-priced meat has brought the plaintive question from meat producers and distributors: "Why pick on meat?" The prices of other foods, they say, are proportionately just as high as those of meat.

Probably the reason is that the cost of meat is the most substantial single item in the average family food budget. Recently published figures placed the nation's weekly meat bill at $135,000,000 more than it was a year ago. In terms of the family budget, that is an increase of almost a dollar a week for each member of the family. Still worse, the amount of meat the customers were getting for all this money was about 40,000,000 pounds a week less than a year ago.

With even higher prices predicted, families with tightly squeezed budgets are beginning to think about the possibility that meat might become a curiosity on the order of an eclipse of the sun, something to talk about but seldom seen. It is understandable that the people in the meat industry are unhappy, along with the customers. But they should not find it too amazing that the militant Texas housewives picked on meat.

WHY THEY FLY

BIRD migration, one of nature's great mysteries, may have its explanation in events of 100 million years ago.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science heard a Northwestern University professor, Dr. Albert Wolfson, expound his thesis that birds evolved at a time when the world's land areas were divided into two masses, Laurasia and Gondwana. He suggests that birds made short flights between these lands for breeding and feeding. The lands drifted apart, only a few inches a year at first, and then divided until the continents took their widely separated locations. The slow increase in distances was imperceptible to the birds, and the migration instinct had become established, reasons Dr. Wolfson.

NEW VACATION SPOT

AN EXCITING boat trip may be available in a year or two. A New York shipping company announces the establishment of freight service 1,000 miles up the Amazon River, with a prospect of adding passenger ships later. Trial trips have proved that freight service will pay. This country will benefit, as well as the steamship company, by the opportunity to draw on the rich and untouched resources of the Amazon jungle. Rough roads are now available from the river to the interior, so that the products of the inland may be brought to the boats.

Of course there will be people to say, "This is all very well, but when will it be possible to drive there?".

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The United States, Great Britain and France did not interfere with Soviet Russia's exclusive authority to seize Karelia in Finland or Bessarabia in Rumania or to establish an Iron Curtain between the Western World and all the Balkan States except Greece. Yet Soviet Russia has demanded a voice in the affairs of Japan, Korea, Manchuria, although Russia was in the Far Eastern War six days and did no fighting. Further, Soviet Russia demands a voice in the settlement of Middle Eastern and African questions although Soviet Russia did no fighting for the liberation of these areas.

The Democrats are embarrassed by the fact that at Teheran, Yalta, Potsdam and the Paris Council of Foreign Ministers, Roosevelt and Truman gave Russia a blank check. It is almost impossible for George Marshall to go back on Roosevelt and Truman and that is why his negotiations with the Russians produce so many difficulties.

The Republicans are equally embarrassed because since the operation of the Bipartisan Foreign Policy, Senator Vandenberg has tended to accept the State Department's view. Furthermore, they cannot discountenance the official attitude of the United States without giving the impression of supporting Soviet Russia, and they can only get such information as the State Department gives them.

So we now have before us the problem of the Italian colonies. They were liberated by British and American troops. The Russians played no part in that campaign. Furthermore, the Russians objected to everything that was being done in Africa because they felt that that would interfere with the Second Front. It will be remembered that Roosevelt had promised Stalin a Second Front in 1942 when Soviet Russia was being defeated, but D-Day did not eventuate until 1944. Roosevelt promised more than he could deliver at the time and the Russians claimed their pound of flesh, although we have given them more than they had any right to expect.

Nevertheless, all the events and all the evidence since 1942, now available, prove conclusively that Churchill was right in his plans for the liberation of Africa and Italy and the underbelly of Europe through the Balkans. Had Roosevelt listened to Churchill, we should not today be faced by so aggressive and demanding a Russia which acts as though the United States and Great Britain were secondary allies.

That is the Russian side of the case and whenever our delegates meet theirs, they are faced by Roosevelt promises and arrangements, and Roosevelt is dead and cannot do anything about it. As long as the Democrats are in the White House and the State Department, they are stuck with the Roosevelt formula, which they cannot repudiate or even successfully revise without the appearance of repudiation. This is as difficult for the Russians as for us, because the Russians have discovered that there is a will here to change but an incapacity to find the direction. This produces diplomatic static which confuses the Russians as it does the Americans.

The aforesaid applies to the problem of the Italian Colonies with which the Four Powers now have to deal. Unless they reach an agreement concerning them by September 21, this question will go to the Assembly of the United Nations where they will use their votes in the Assembly to bargain over Palestine; the South Americans and the Chinese will use this problem as bargaining points between the United States Great

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOUGH very complicated in structure, the knee is not a versatile joint. It can bend or straighten, but it cannot, like certain other joints, execute a circular movement. Thus, it does not withstand well, sudden forceful movements which involve twisting of the leg.

Certain sports and industries seem to make for the type of strain which results in injury to the knee. College boys who play football and miners who dig coal have one thing in common—both are familiar with the type of knee injury which results from tearing of the cartilages within the joint, because it occurs so often in connection with their work or sport.

Torn Cartilages

The symptoms of torn cartilages in the joint are pain and tenderness in the knee, and locking of the joint in a half-bent position, followed in a few hours by swelling. The joint will suddenly unlock, either by itself or following manipulation, and there is immediate relief from pain and discomfort. However, there are recurrent attacks of the locking and pain which are usually less severe than the first attack. These recurrent attacks are brought on by a slight twist or strain of the knee.

There is a test which can be made to aid in determining whether or not torn cartilages are present. The patient lies down and relaxes. Then the foot is firmly grasped by the physician and the knee is bent as much as possible until the heel approaches the buttock. The foot is then turned outward and the leg bent outward at the knee. With the leg and foot in this position, the knee is slowly straightened. If during this movement there is pain and a click within the joint, it is likely that the cartilages within the joint have been damaged.

Injury to Knee

When an injury to the knee occurs, of course, an X-ray examination should be made. However, the X-ray will not show a tear in the cartilages unless some of the cartilage has broken off and is free in the joint. Such a bit of material in the joint is called a loose body. Such a loose body, coming from some condition other than tearing of the cartilage, may cause symptoms much like those of a torn cartilage. When this bit of material gets caught between the bone surfaces that make up the joint, there may be locking and acute pain.

Strain of the ligaments may also produce symptoms like those of cartilage tears.

Treatment for the tears depends upon the extent of the damage. If the joint is locked when first seen by the physician, manipulation may be carried out to get the cartilage back into proper position. Then a firm bandage or splint may be put on. If the manipulation is not successful, an operation, which consists of removing the cartilage, must be carried out. If the condition recurs several times, operation always is advisable, since some permanent injury to the joint may occur if the disorder is allowed to continue.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. J.: My daughter six years old has a difficult time in pronouncing words. Is there some school where she could be taught?

Answer: There are various schools for instruction in speech. The best thing is to take the child to a physician who specializes in speech training to find the cause of her trouble; then proper treatment may be carried out.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

There is a report that television set owners are deserting the movies, but that's only until they get the grocery bill.

I know a fellow who paid $495 for a set, $65 for installation and $95 for pretzels. . .but he saved $4 in one month by not going to the movies.

Last night he got home and a stranger at the door said "sorry . . .standing room only."

Fellow says "but I live here!" and the stranger says "well, it's about time you got a larger place. . .do you know your living room will only seat 30?"

But it was like that with the first telephone. . .all the neighbors dropped in to hear it ring and then when it rang everyone was too frightened to answer it.

Soon television will be commonplace and when the neighbors drop in they'll eat before they come. . .at least a week before they come.

Among the earliest automaton clocks or "jacks of the clock," built in the tower clocks of Europe, were those of the clocks of Dijon, Cambrai and Linden. In each two figures appear and strike the hourly bell. In 1495 the clock at Lubeck was built in which the figures of the Twelve Apostles were introduced.

The term "Buccaneers" was first applied to early day French cowboys in Haiti who turned pirate when cattle raising proved unprofitable and lent their designation to all pirates.

CHAPTER TWENTY

"OH THERE you are, Lynn," Adela's voice was brisk and relieved. "I didn't hear you come in, darling. Have you been in long?"

"Oh yes, ages. I was upstairs."

"I wish you'd tell me when you come in, Lynn. I'm always nervous when you're out alone after dark."

"Really, Mums, don't you think I can look after myself?"

"Well, there have been dreadful things in the papers lately. All these discharged soldiers—they attack girls."

"I expect the girls ask for it."

She smiled—rather a twisted smile.

Yes, girls did ask for danger. . . . Who, after all, really wanted to be safe . . . ?

"Lynn, darling, are you listening?"

Lynn brought her mind back with a jerk.

Her mother had been talking.

"What did you say, Mums?"

"I was talking about your bridesmaids, dear. I suppose they'll be able to produce the coupons all right. It's very lucky for you having all your demob ones. I'm really terribly sorry for girls who get married nowadays on just their ordinary coupons. I mean they just can't have anything new at all. Not outside, I mean. What with the state all one's undies are in nowadays one just has to go for them. Yes, Lynn, you really are lucky."

She was walking round the room—prowling, picking up things, puttinge them down.

"Must you be so terribly restless dear? You make me feel quite jumpy!"

"Sorry, Mums."

"There's nothing the matter, is there?"

"What should be the matter?" asked Lynn sharply.

"Well, don't jump down my throat, darling. Now about bridesmaids. I really think you ought to ask the Macrae girl. Her mother was my closest friend, remember, and I do think she'll be hurt if—"

"I loathe Joan Macrae and always have."

"I know, darling, but does that really matter? Marjorie will, I'm sure, feel hurt—"

"Really, Mums, it's my wedding, isn't it?"

"Yes, I know, Lynn, but—"

"If there is a wedding at all!"

She hadn't meant to say that. The words slipped out without her having planned them. She would have caught them back, but it was too late. Mrs. Marchmont was staring at her daughter in alarm.

"Lynn, darling, what do you mean?"

"Oh, nothing, Mums."

"You and Rowley haven't quarrelled?"

"No, of course not. Don't fuss, Mums, everything's all right."

But Adela was looking at her daughter in real alarm, sensitive to the turmoil behind Lynn's frowning exterior.

"I've always felt you'd be safe married to Rowley," she said piteously.

"Who wants to be safe?" Lynn asked scornfully. She turned sharply. "Was that the telephone?"

"No. Why? Are you expecting a call?"

Lynn shook her head. Humiliating to be waiting for the telephone to ring. He had said he would ring her tonight. He must. "You're mad," she told herself. "Mad."

Why did this man attract her so? The memory of his dark unhappy face rose up before her eyes. She tried to banish it, tried to replace it by Rowley's broad good-looking countenance. His slow smile, his affectionate glance. But did Rowley, she thought, really care about her? Surely if he'd really cared, he'd have understood that day when she came to him and begged for five hundred pounds. He'd have understood instead of being so maddeningly reasonable and matter-of-fact. Marry Rowley, live on the farm, never go away again, never see foreign skies, smell exotic smells—never, again, be free—

Sharply the telephone rang. Lynn took a deep breath, walked across the hall and picked up the receiver.

With the shock of a blow, Aunt Kathie's voice came thinly through the wire.

"Lynn? Is that you? Oh I'm so glad. I'm afraid, you know, I've made rather a muddle—about the meeting at the Institute—"

The thin fluttering voice went on. Lynn listened, interpolated comments, uttered reassurances, received thanks.

"Such a comfort, dear Lynn, you are always so kind and so practical. I really can't imagine how I get things so muddled up."

Lynn couldn't imagine either. Aunt Kathie's capacity for muddling the simplest issues amounted practically to genius.

"But I always do say," finished Aunt Kathie, "that everything goes wrong at once. Our telephone is out of order and I've had to go out to a call box, and now I'm here I hadn't got twopence, only halfpennies—and I had to go and ask—"

It petered out at last. Lynn hung up and went back to the drawing room. Adela Marchmont, alert, asked: "Was that—" and paused.

Lynn said quickly: "Aunt Kathie."

"What did she want?"

"Oh just one of her usual muddles."

Lynn sat down again with a book, glancing up at the clock. Yes—it had been too early. She couldn't expect her call yet. At five minutes past eleven the telephone rang again. She went slowly out to it. This time she wouldn't expect—it was probably Aunt Kathie again—

But no. "Warmsley Vale 34? Can Miss Lynn Marchmont take a personal call from London?"

Her heart missed a beat.

"This is Miss Lynn Marchmont speaking."

"Hold on, please."

She waited—confused noises—then silence. The telephone service was getting worse and worse. She waited. Finally she depressed the receiver angrily. Another woman's voice, indifferent, cold, spoke, was uninterested. "Hang up, please. You'll be called later."

She hung up, went back towards the drawing room, the bell rang again as she had her hand on the door. She hurried back to the telephone.

"Hullo?"

A man's voice said: "Warmsley Vale 34? Personal call from London for Miss Lynn Marchmont."

"Speaking."

"Just a minute, please." Then, faintly, "Speak up, London, you're through . . ."

And then, suddenly, David's voice:

"Lynn, is that you?"

"David!"

"I had to speak to you."

"Yes . . ."

"Look here, Lynn, I think I'd better clear out. . . ."

"What do you mean?"

"Clear out of England altogether. Oh! it's easy enough. I've pretended it wasn't to Rosaleen—simply because I didn't want to leave Warmsley Vale. But what's the good of it all? You and I—it wouldn't work. You're a fine girl, Lynn—and as for me, I'm a bit of a crook, always have been. And don't flatter yourself that I'd go straight for your sake. I might mean to—but it wouldn't work. No, you'd better marry the plodding Rowley. He'll never give you a day's anxiety as long as you live."

She stood there, holding the receiver, saying nothing.

"Lynn, are you there still?"

"Yes, I'm here."

"You didn't say anything."

"What is there to say?"

"Lynn?"

"Well? . . ."

Strange how clearly she could feel over all that distance, his excitement, the urgency of his mood.

He said explosively, "Heck with everything!" and rang off.

Mrs. Marchmont coming out of the drawing room said, "Was that—?"

"A wrong number," said Lynn and went quickly up the stairs.

Mr. And Mrs. McClarren Celebrate Their 50th Wedding Anniversary

Daughter Assists At Open House

After entertaining to a family dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Edward McClarren of Logan street celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon at an open house.

Mrs. McClarren received her guests in an orchid shadow lace gown with a corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Glen Hoskins of Detroit.

The guests were invited to the diningroom where refreshments were served from a lace covered table. A color scheme of gold and white was carried out in the appointments with a large bowl of nasturtiums and burning tapers being used on the table. The napkins were embossed in gold "Mollie and Ed. 1898-1948" Mrs. William B. Cady of South Scioto street poured.

The Rev. A. E. Wright officiated for the marriage of Mollie Mounts and Edward McClarren August 16, 1898 in the parsonage of the United Brethren church, at that time on East Franklin street.

Stir in chocolate mixture. Sift cake flour, measure 2 C. and sift with ¾ tsp. soda, 2 tsp. baking powder and ½ tsp. salt. Measure ½ C. milk, add 1 tsp. vanilla, and add alternately with the dry ingredients to the creamed mixture. Cromwell Closes Career In Track

PARIS, Aug. 17—Dean Cromwell, the world's greatest track and field coach, is through with the sport.

The University of Southern California mentor, who led the United States team to victory in the recent Olympics, made this revelation after his charges won an international meet concluded at Colombes stadium yesterday. He said:

"This is my last track meet."

Cromwell has won more national championships and has produced more world champions than any coach in track history.

Britain and Soviet Russia.

It will no longer be, in the Assembly of the United Nations, a question of the disposition of the Italian Colonies, the reconstruction of Italy, the safety of the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal. It will be a competition among small powers to use their votes to get as much as they can out of great powers.

The colonies involved are Eritrea in Africa on the Red Sea; Italian Somaliland on the Indian Ocean; Libya, which includes Tripolitania and Cyrenaica in North Africa from Egypt to Tunis; and some islands in the Aegean. The Libyan and Aegean areas have been Italian on and off for many centuries, often controlling the historic fate of Italy. Certainly Russia has never, remotely or recently, played any part in their history.

Cromwell Closes Career In Track

PARIS, Aug. 17—Dean Cromwell, the world's greatest track and field coach, is through with the sport.

The University of Southern California mentor, who led the United States team to victory in the recent Olympics, made this revelation after his charges won an international meet concluded at Colombes stadium yesterday. He said:

"This is my last track meet."

Cromwell has won more national championships and has produced more world champions than any coach in track history.

Britain and Soviet Russia.

It will no longer be, in the Assembly of the United Nations, a question of the disposition of the Italian Colonies, the reconstruction of Italy, the safety of the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal. It will be a competition among small powers to use their votes to get as much as they can out of great powers.

The colonies involved are Eritrea in Africa on the Red Sea; Italian Somaliland on the Indian Ocean; Libya, which includes Tripolitania and Cyrenaica in North Africa from Egypt to Tunis; and some islands in the Aegean. The Libyan and Aegean areas have been Italian on and off for many centuries, often controlling the historic fate of Italy. Certainly Russia has never, remotely or recently, played any part in their history.

Belmont Wins Over Millirons

Columbus Team Leads All Way

Belmont AC of Columbus downed Millirons 5-1 in the last game of the first round of play in the Circleville Night Softball League Tournament at Ted Lewis Park Monday night.

The visitors held Millirons scoreless for all but the last inning of play in the tilt, and, until the final frame, had allowed the locals but one hit.

The Columbus aggregation posted an early lead in the second inning of the fracas, scoring three runs on a homerun, an error, two other hits and a passed ball. The AC's added to their lead in the fifth with a single tally, scored on two errors and a passed ball.

THE MILLIRON squad staged a short rally in the last inning of play, scoring a lone tally on three hits and two errors. The rally fell short, however, when, with two aboard and two out, the last Milliron man tagged an easy ground ball to the Belmont second baseman.

Belmont first baseman Byrd rapped out the longest hit of the encounter, slashing a line drive into rightfield in the second inning for a round trip of the basepaths.

Tuesday night's tourney schedule calls for a single game between Millirons and the Ohio School of Trade of Columbus at 8:15 p. m.

• • •

THE WEDNESDAY card holds a doubleheader for Circleville softball fans, both games between teams still in the winner's bracket.

The opening tilt of the Wednesday twin bill is scheduled between Isalys and Lockbourne Merchants at 7:15 p. m., which is to be followed by an encounter between Boyers and Belmont AC.

Following is the box score of Monday's Milliron loss:

Jerry Witte, one of baseball's streakiest hitters, is at it again.

Sunday, big Jerry won two games for the Colonels with a two-run single and a homer, each in the ninth inning.

Last night he continued his spree with three homeruns against Minneapolis. The third one, with two on in the ninth, won the game for the Colonels, 9 to 7.

Minneapolis came back to take the nightcap of a doubleheader, 14 to 8.

A couple of ex-major leaguers carried first place Indianapolis and second place Milwaukee to victory.

Marv Rickert, one-time Chicago Cub, homered in the tenth to enable Milwaukee to defeat Toledo, 5 to 4.

The veteran Jim Bagby won his 15th game of the season for Indianapolis, downing St. Paul, 7 to 5. The Tribe scored all its runs in the eighth inning.

Columbus also had a big inning to defeat Kansas City, 12 to 6. The Red Birds scored eight times in the top of the ninth. By winning they pulled into a third place tie with St. Paul.

Called-Shot Site Of Babe May Become Sport's Shrine

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—In days and possibly generations to come, fathers will take their sons to Wrigley field on Chicago's north side, point to the bleachers in right-center field and say:

"Look there. That's where the Babe called his shot."

It is almost 16 years ago, but the story of the home run Babe Ruth hit that day, October 1, 1932, in the third game of the World Series between the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs is in many a sense baseball's greatest story.

It was the self-admitted greatest moment for baseball's greatest figure, who died last night—a legend in his time.

There has been and will be controversy as to whether the Babe actually did "call his shot," enraged by razzing from the Cub bench and pointing to the place in the bleachers where, moments later, he was to belt Charlie Root's Sunday pitch.

Ruth himself, in telling the story, once said:

"I didn't exactly point to one spot. At least, I didn't mean to."

But big George Magerkurth, who was plate unpire that day, tells it differently.

"There's the score tied four up in the top of the fifth," George relates, "and everybody yelling to beat the band, and up steps Ruth. Charlie Root puts the first one past him and I call it a strike and the Babe just steps back and holds up one finger so everyone can see.

"Then Root pours another one in and I call it strike two, and Babe turns and yells at me, 'was it in there, big boy?' I told him it was. And he grinned and said, 'ain't it the truth?' And then he held up two fingers and took his bat and pointed it out there to the bleachers so everybody in the ball park knew what he meant."

If there was anyone in the park still unaware of Ruth's intentions, the Babe proceeded to make himself very clear indeed. Root, trying like crazy to put the third strike past the Yankee slugger, burned one in and away it went—high, wide and handsome, taking the ball game with it.

Nobody else did things like that. No one else is likely to.

Bums Bounce Back; Drop Braves 6-2

Vandy Pitches 5-2 Triumph

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Billy Southworth of the Boston Braves may be the world's best baseball manager, but Barney Shotton of the Brooklyn Dodgers seems to be outdoing him these days as a hypnotist.

When Brooklyn blew up in the ninth inning and lost to the Braves in Boston Saturday night, it seemed to be the key game of the National league pennant race.

The next day, however, Grandpa Shotton told the Dodgers, in effect:

"Look, you guys. Last year the Dodgers lost tough games like you did last night. If you're a good team, you'll bounce back too."

Bounce back the Dodgers did. They won Sunday and they beat the Braves again last night, 6 to 2, to win the series and cut Boston's lead to only two games.

The Braves were doing all right until Southworth made the mistake of lifting Warren Spahn, his stylish southpaw, for a pinch hitter in the seventh. The Dodgers promptly teed off on three other hub hurlers for five hits and four runs in the eighth.

EVEN IF Brooklyn does go into a slump, the Braves still may find themselves hard-pressed by the third place St. Louis Cardinals, who trail them by only 2-½ games.

Paced by Stan Musial, who hit his 29th homer, a double and two singles, the Cards outslugged the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 7. It was a rough afternoon for pitchers, nine hurlers seeing action.

The only other game scheduled was an arc light contest between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. Johnny Vander Meer of the Reds held the Pirates to five hits for a 5-to-2 triumph.

Belmont Wins Over Millirons

Columbus Team Leads All Way

Belmont AC of Columbus downed Millirons 5-1 in the last game of the first round of play in the Circleville Night Softball League Tournament at Ted Lewis Park Monday night.

The visitors held Millirons scoreless for all but the last inning of play in the tilt, and, until the final frame, had allowed the locals but one hit.

The Columbus aggregation posted an early lead in the second inning of the fracas, scoring three runs on a homerun, an error, two other hits and a passed ball. The AC's added to their lead in the fifth with a single tally, scored on two errors and a passed ball.

THE MILLIRON squad staged a short rally in the last inning of play, scoring a lone tally on three hits and two errors. The rally fell short, however, when, with two aboard and two out, the last Milliron man tagged an easy ground ball to the Belmont second baseman.

Belmont first baseman Byrd rapped out the longest hit of the encounter, slashing a line drive into rightfield in the second inning for a round trip of the basepaths.

Tuesday night's tourney schedule calls for a single game between Millirons and the Ohio School of Trade of Columbus at 8:15 p. m.

THE WEDNESDAY card holds a doubleheader for Circleville softball fans, both games between teams still in the winner's bracket.

The opening tilt of the Wednesday twin bill is scheduled between Isalys and Lockbourne Merchants at 7:15 p. m., which is to be followed by an encounter between Boyers and Belmont AC.

Following is the box score of Monday's Milliron loss:

Two Clubs Meet Quota In Drive for 4-H Foundation

32 Groups Speeding To Goal

543 Boys, Girls Aim At $2,200

Members of Pickaway County's 32 boys' and girls' 4-H Clubs this week were redoubling efforts to meet their quotas by Sept. 1, deadline for the county's $2,200 share of the 4-H Club Foundation.

First to meet their quotas were the Fine and Dandy Club and Darby Flying Needles Club of Darby Township. Through cooperative efforts the two organizations met the $130 goal and have turned the money over to County Agent L. A. Best.

Purpose of the foundation is to establish club camps, schools and programs for the promotion of 4-H Club leadership.

FROM THE 88 county quotas, one-half of a state fund of $200,000 is expected to be reached. The remainder will be solicited in the state's 10 largest cities.

The total sum then will be deposited in the Ohio state treasury at six percent interest. The interest money will be used as working capital for the promotion of club leadership, Best explained.

Administration of the fund and selection of leaders will be handled by a committee of state 4-H Club leaders which include many professional men.

Each club was urged to form a "working committee" to outline plans to meet the respective quotas. Each of the county's 543 4-H Club members is responsible for approximately $4.05 of the county quota.

The foundation first was announced by C. C. Lang, state club supervisor, at a meeting of Pickaway County 4-H Club officers, advisers and parents.

He said such work as the foundation fund backed by all the counties made "4-H Clubs of America the core and heart of democracy."

B-36 To Show At Air Races

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The Air Force announced that several of its newest planes, including the world's largest bombers, the B-36, will participate in the Cleveland Air Races, Sept. 4-6.

Preliminary plans call for daily reviews of at least 30 B-29 Superfortresses and 75 F-84 Thunderjets. Dive bombing demonstrations by a flight of eight F-80 shooting stars also may be presented.

The six-engine B-36 bomber will be on public exhibition. The only previous public showing of the 300-mile an hour plane was at the New York International air show earlier this month.

Women Seek 10 Cent Cut In Meat Prices

DENVER, Aug. 17—Irate Denver housewives have begun a week-long boycott of meat counters today with the announced goal of bringing prices down an average of 10 cents a pound.

Leaders of the petticoat rebellion have picked a name—Housewives' Meat Temperance Movement—and a rallying cry for their organization.

Their corn-fed slogan is, "We veal sorry for the butcher, but we steak our trust in the housewife." Their beef, they explained, is the spiraling price of beef.

Draftees To Be Summoned About Nov. 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The first draftees to be called into the armed forces under the new selective service law will be inducted about Nov. 1.

Selective service officials announced the initial induction date today after the Army disclosed that its first request for men will go to Draft Director Hershey about Sept. 2.

The draft officials said that the first draft call will be for about 15,000 men, all off whom are slated to go into the Army.

Neither the Navy nor the Air Force is expected to ask for any men from the first draft call. Draft registrations begin Aug. 30.

Terrier Guards Dead Master

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 17—A tiny little fox terrier, named "Pretty," stood off police for hours when they sought to remove the body of her dead master.

Police received a report that Paul De Vord, 61, had not been seen since Sunday. When they called they could see his body, but "Pretty" refused to let them approach.

Finally, agents of the Humane Society were called and netted the faithful animal, and the body of her master was carried away.

De Vord died of natural causes.

Two Clubs Meet Quota In Drive for 4-H Foundation

32 Groups Speeding To Goal

543 Boys, Girls Aim At $2,200

Members of Pickaway County's 32 boys' and girls' 4-H Clubs this week were redoubling efforts to meet their quotas by Sept. 1, deadline for the county's $2,200 share of the 4-H Club Foundation.

First to meet their quotas were the Fine and Dandy Club and Darby Flying Needles Club of Darby Township. Through cooperative efforts the two organizations met the $130 goal and have turned the money over to County Agent L. A. Best.

Purpose of the foundation is to establish club camps, schools and programs for the promotion of 4-H Club leadership.

FROM THE 88 county quotas, one-half of a state fund of $200,000 is expected to be reached. The remainder will be solicited in the state's 10 largest cities.

The total sum then will be deposited in the Ohio state treasury at six percent interest. The interest money will be used as working capital for the promotion of club leadership, Best explained.

Administration of the fund and selection of leaders will be handled by a committee of state 4-H Club leaders which include many professional men.

Each club was urged to form a "working committee" to outline plans to meet the respective quotas. Each of the county's 543 4-H Club members is responsible for approximately $4.05 of the county quota.

The foundation first was announced by C. C. Lang, state club supervisor, at a meeting of Pickaway County 4-H Club officers, advisers and parents.

He said such work as the foundation fund backed by all the counties made "4-H Clubs of America the core and heart of democracy."

B-36 To Show At Air Races

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The Air Force announced that several of its newest planes, including the world's largest bombers, the B-36, will participate in the Cleveland Air Races, Sept. 4-6.

Preliminary plans call for daily reviews of at least 30 B-29 Superfortresses and 75 F-84 Thunderjets. Dive bombing demonstrations by a flight of eight F-80 shooting stars also may be presented.

The six-engine B-36 bomber will be on public exhibition. The only previous public showing of the 300-mile an hour plane was at the New York International air show earlier this month.

"Tin" cans actually are 98½ to 99 per cent steel, coated with a very thin layer of tin.

Women Seek 10 Cent Cut In Meat Prices

DENVER, Aug. 17—Irate Denver housewives have begun a week-long boycott of meat counters today with the announced goal of bringing prices down an average of 10 cents a pound.

Leaders of the petticoat rebellion have picked a name—Housewives' Meat Temperance Movement—and a rallying cry for their organization.

Their corn-fed slogan is, "We veal sorry for the butcher, but we steak our trust in the housewife." Their beef, they explained, is the spiraling price of beef.
